IVAN LABRIE

GOLD - THE FULL CYCLE

$1,395 to $5,250. Every major turn, called in public.

2019 - 2026

Seven years, timestamped on TradingView

CALLED BOTH ENDS

COVID bottom (Mar 2020) + multi-year top (Oct 2025)

ONE METHOD

2-month trend signal, COT at bottoms, blow-off logic at tops

@ivan_labrie | ivanlabrie.substack.com | tradingview.com/u/IvanLabrie

Public calls. Nothing backfilled or edited after the fact.

Gold: the full cycle, 2019 to 2026

Every major turn, called in public

People keep asking for gold updates. Here is the whole public record first, so you know exactly whose read you are taking. Every call below is timestamped on TradingView. None of it was added after the fact.

When / Call	What was published, and how it resolved	Source
Jun 2019 Breakout	"Weekly target exceeded, 2M trend active." Long near $1,395, clearing the ceiling that capped gold since 2013. The projected path was drawn on a 2-month chart; price walked it for the next four years.	XAUUSD/5xT7n68x
Mar 18 2020 COVID low	"Gold might break the all-time high." Posted into the worst of the liquidation at ~$1,470, on a yearly chart measured against CPI. The all-time high broke five months later.	XAUUSD/2LLqFKln
Jul 2020 Blow-off top	"Long then flip short in 6 weeks." Gold ran to ~$2,075 in early August, above the 2011 high, then rolled over.	XAUUSD/z4r7V5f9
Sep 25 2022 Bottom	Used the Commitment of Traders positioning signal to call the low around $1,640. Gold bottomed within days.	XAUUSD/XhBK9PBt
Oct 2023 Trend turn	Monthly trend flipped bullish. Posted in dollars, with a 20-25% gold allocation suggested to readers.	XAUUSD/xl2JUVgY
Oct 2023 Same week, EUR	"Massive signal in Gold vs Euro." Same trend turn confirmed in euro terms the same week.	XAUEUR/1wBHvGKv
Jan 25 2025 Reload	"Firing on all cylinders." Long again near $2,770, target 3,224. It blew through that.	XAUUSD/ABRVnHQD
Oct 2025 The top	"Long-term top increasingly likely. Sell, don't FOMO." Target 501 on GLD. Gold printed it in Q1 2026 and topped just over 509, around $5,250 spot. Same scale of top as 2011.	GLD/dXMD5f1X

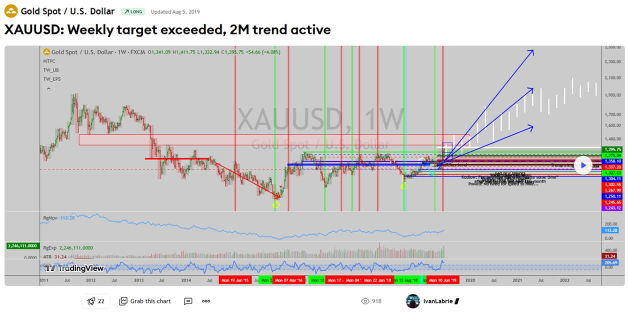
The arc: $1,395 in 2019 to about $5,250 in Q1 2026, roughly +275%. Both ends were called in public, before the outcome was known: the COVID bottom in March 2020 and the multi-year top in October 2025, each timestamped on TradingView.

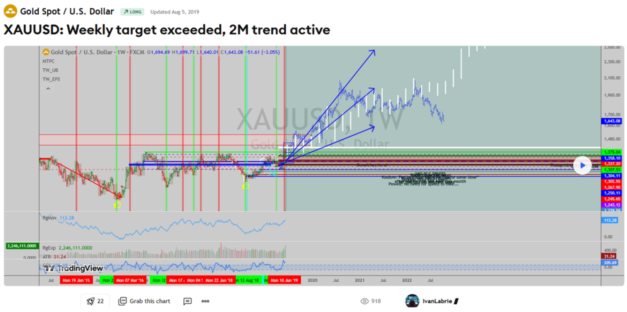
One method, not a streak. A 2-month timeframe trend signal for direction, Commitment of Traders positioning to find the bottoms, and trend-duration and blow-off logic to find the tops. Same toolkit at the 2020 low, the 2022 low, the 2020 top and the 2026 top. Calling one turn is luck. Calling them with the same tools for six years is a process.

The charts (1 of 2)

Where it started, and the bottom nobody wanted to buy

Each chart is the actual before/after screenshot from the original post. Click any chart to open it at full resolution; the links beneath open the full-res image and the live TradingView chart.





June 2019. The breakout call near $1,395, with the projected path drawn on a 2-month chart. Price tracked it for years.

Full-resolution before/after screenshot | Live chart on TradingView

March 18, 2020. "Gold might break the all-time high," posted into the COVID liquidation at ~$1,470 on a yearly, inflation-adjusted chart. The ATH broke five months later.

Full-resolution before/after screenshot | Live chart on TradingView

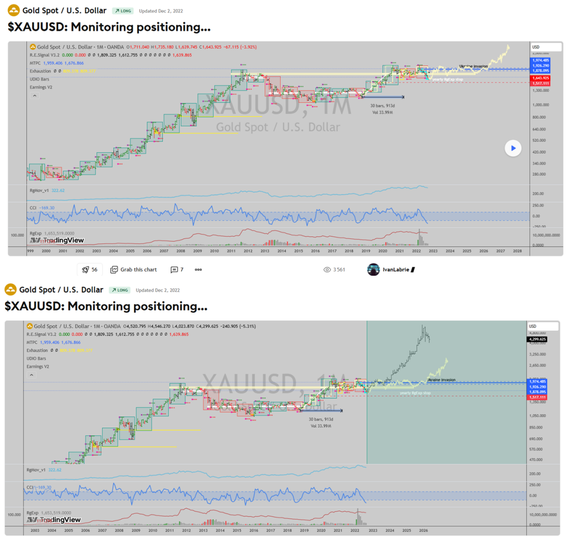
The charts (2 of 2)

The cycle bottom, and the top called to the dollar



September 2022. The Commitment of Traders signal marking the low near $1,640.

Full-resolution before/after screenshot | Live chart on TradingView

October 2025. "Long-term top increasingly likely. Sell, don't FOMO." Target 501 on GLD; gold printed it in Q1 2026 and topped over 509.

Full-resolution before/after screenshot | Live chart on TradingView

Where gold is now

The multi-year top is in. Short from June 10 around $4,150, with invalidation at $4,775. If price closes above that, the call is wrong. Gold has also changed character: it trades like a rate-sensitive asset now, not a war-headline safe haven, and it sells off when rate-hike odds rise. That short is a live position, not part of the closed record. Judge the record on the bottom and the top, both closed and both public.

Follow the work

Substack (free updates): ivanlabrie.substack.com | X: @ivan_labrie | TradingView: tradingview.com/u/IvanLabrie | ivanlabrie.netlify.app